June is a pretty and hardworking hopeless romantic in her late twenties, trying to make it in the fast paced and very competitive business of wedding planning. Her over-the-top nagging mother wants her to get married like yesterday and this drives her crazy. She finds solace in the company of her two friends, Remi the desperate man hunter and Ejiro who is pretty much like Remi but would die first before she admits it. These two make her life a bit more colourful than she desires. To add pepper to the open wound, her boyfriend of five years is chronically commitment shy and is making no attempt to make their union official. Her fate soon takes a turn when she meets a bridezilla who seems hell bent on making June's professional life a living hell. Just when June is about to throw in the towel on the job, she meets the soon to be groom who is nothing like his fiancée. The two soon start a friendship that would spiral out of control and leave the two of them with very tough decisions to make. Decisions that are sure to change their lives and the lives of those they care about.
